

Dear Chairman Powell:

In my opinion there is already too much concentration of ownership in the media industry. Far too many radio stations are owned by two or three large corporations. Please do not make it possible for further concentration of media ownership by altering the ownership rules now in effect. The public interest requires a broad diversity of views, and allowing one entity to own many of the major outlets, radio, TV and print, in a single market inevitably reduces the diversity of offerings. I want to be able to get my news and opinion from lots of people besides Rupert Murdoch!

Sincerely,

C. Murray Adams
